ANNOUNCEMENTS

Sold Lincoln Avenue Lot.
The sale of a very desirable lot on Lincoln Avenue has just been consummated by John A. Moran, real estate broker, and it is understood that the new owner has development plans for the property. The sale was made for the administrator of the estate of Julia C. G. Platt. It is a lot on the northern side of Lincoln Avenue, a short distance west of the corner of Uncas street, and has a front of 120 feet and depth of 215 feet. The lot is the last owned by the Platt estate, which was once the owner of a large tract of land in that locality.

DAVIS THEATRE.

Complete Change of Photoplays With Mme. Petrova in The Vampire, Five-Part Feature.

There will be a complete change of photoplays here today, and another feature picture will be seen at the Davis theatre Wednesday and Thursday, with Mme. Petrova, the magnificent emotional actress, in The Vampire, a five-part feature. The Vampire is a story of a woman more sinners against than sinners is beautifully depicted. Be sure and see this picture. Other pictures on the program are The Bois De Boulogne, a beautiful colored scenic picture of picturesque France, and a funny comedy called Bold Bad Boy. Today will be the last chance to see The Darktown Revue, the big singing and dancing act that is making a big hit with the Davis patrons. Another big novelty act has been booked for the last half of the week.

LAUDER'S PATRIOTISM.

Harry Gives Up Thousands in Theatrical Receipts to Help His Country.

Tales that Harry Lauder is a "light-wad" vanish into empty air. It is known that as soon as Harry, who was then playing an engagement of 25 weeks in this country, learned that his son, Capt. John Lauder, was killed in the Sutherland Highlanders, was starting for the front, he brought his tour in Australia to a close after a week's had been played, and over England's salary is $5,000 a week he sacrificed $75,000 of real money for a sentiment—that of seeing his son before the latter went into action.

Arrived in England, Lauder at once subscribed $5,000 to the Prince of Wales's fund. He saw the boy in whom all his hopes were tied up go to the snow-filled trenches in France, and then he cast about to find means to help his country as best he might. He suggested a plan to the authorities to help recruiting, and they accepted it with acclaim. As a result Lauder equipped a band of 50 pipers and started to take them all over England and Scotland as a means of working up the attendance at these meetings, some of which were held in halls and others in the open air. All this was done without a cent of expense to the government, as Lauder not only equipped the piper band, but paid their salaries and expenses, and has been doing so for nearly eight months. It is only lately that he began to play at the hall in Scotland and England, and in every one of the cities there was held on the following day a recruiting meeting at which thousands were moved by Lauder's eloquence and by his hard common sense arguments to rally to their country's cause.

During his stay in Scotland, Mr. Lauder and his wife helped to nurse their son three times when he was sent back from the front with wounds. Young Lauder has been mentioned in orders and has been made a captain in his regiment, a battalion of which has been called "Lauder's Own" in honor of his father, and which is made up largely of recruits gained by the comedian.

AT THE AUDITORIUM.

William S. Hart in The Bargain, Paramount Feature in Three Acts.

A fine show is promised for those who attend the Auditorium today, when three unusually good vaudeville numbers and the big Paramount feature entitled The Bargain, with William S. Hart, the famous Broadway favorite, in the leading role, is a western drama with the scene laid in the Grand Canyon of Arizona.

In the first scene the country is alarmed by advice that Jim Stokes, the "two-gun man," is in the neighborhood headed for the border, and warning is given to place a double guard around the stage on its trip through the canyon. This warning is needed, for Jim is planning to hold up the stage and obtain a package of gold on it consigned to the express company. Jim accomplishes the feat and holds up the stage with its double guard and gets the money. He is followed in his attempt to escape and wounded.

From this situation Jim is rescued by Nell Brent, a girl who takes him to her home, and Nell nurses him back to health. He falls in love with his pretty nurse, and without revealing his identity he is married to her. Conscience-stricken, she determines to return the stolen money to the express company, and Jim, who is again making a daring escape, but is finally captured in a typical western hotel, combining saloon, gambling and dance hall.

Charles Moore & Co. in a neat comedy singing offering, Louise and Ferera, introducing a musical specialty, and Bernard Robinson, an acrobatic dancer, make up the vaudeville bill, which is a particularly good one.

Two Pool Tables, 1 large Icebox, 2 good chairs, 1 good stove, 1 good Peanut Machine, 1 Parlor Stove, 1 Dining Room Table, Lamp and Electric Light Fixtures. Make up Table and about to go on for her third group of songs on the night of the final concert. Mme. Frisch was waited upon by the chamberlain of the king, and she sang at the palace for King Alfonso and Queen Victoria on the following Sunday. It was with the keenest regret that Mme. Frisch was obliged to decline the honor, but it happened that on the very day chosen by her majesty the singer was booked to sail for New York from Bordeaux.

"I've sung for members of nearly every royal family in Europe except the Russian," said Mme. Frisch after her arrival in New York. "I did want to complete my list, but I am happiest to have sung for the Queen Mother of Alexandria, of England, for she is a Danish princess, and well—I am a Dane myself," she naively added.

Jean Verd, the young French pianist, who is to appear with Mme. Frisch, is looked upon as one of the most brilliant pianists of his nationality known to the music world of today. Mr. Verd has the distinction of having won the Premier Prix for piano at the Paris Conservatoire, the highest award possible at that famous institution. As he won under circumstances quite extraordinary, the incident is worth relating. It was six years ago, when the competition was held at the Opera Comique, the judges, including such well known musicians as Harold Bauer, Albeniz, the composer, and others of equal note. The competitors had drawn numbers for the order of their appearance, and Mr. Verd had been so fortunate, or unfortunate, he has never made up his mind which it was, to draw the unlucky "12."

"It's a pity that the poor boy didn't get a chance," he happened to hear someone remark, as he was regaining consciousness several hours later. "The last one has played and now the jury has gone to their room," his informant continued.

Without a second's hesitation, the young man arose from the couch and, walking back to the auditorium, he played with such brilliancy, skill and intelligence that he not only won the applause from the audience, but also the highest award from the judges.

At the recital here, in addition to playing Mme. Frisch's accompaniment, Mr. Verd will play the Liszt "Legend of St. Francis de Paul Walking on the Waves," the "Clair de Lune" of Debussy, and an arrangement of an old French folk song.

Course tickets for the three concerts are $2.50, all seats reserved. Single tickets for the course, as well as single tickets for the Friday evening concert, will be on sale at the store of George A. Davis beginning Wednesday, Dec. 8.

A full-grown sheep averages 150 pounds in weight.

HELP—HELP!
OVER 40 VACANCIES
have been filled and all available candidates placed, and we still have three good places to be filled at $10 to $14 per week.

If you are competent, no matter what your experience, call on us today for an appointment to interview the office manager of one of the most important business firms of Eastern Connecticut. One position is clerical, with a knowledge of bookkeeping, the other two must be stenographers, and one of these with a knowledge of bookkeeping. These places must be filled if possible this week.

Norwich Commercial School students have recently been awarded 43 speed and accuracy certificates and 40 have recently accepted permanent or substitute positions. One firm taking six students, three others one each.

The systems in use at the Norwich Commercial School in the Panama-Pacific Exposition, and President Wilson selected two writers of the systems taught here as his personal stenographers.

You can safely advise your friends to attend this school, for it is the only school in the East mentioned in the United States Government Report and its enrollment is larger than the combined enrollment of all business schools in this section. Over 95 in attendance since Sept. 1st.

The Editor of the Business Journal of New York in a recent article mentioned the proprietor of Norwich Commercial School as one of the foremost Private School Managers in America, and the Board of Trade and Chamber of Commerce have voted to commend the school for its work on several occasions.

This school caters to those who demand the best. Every graduate of the past year was placed in a satisfactory position on or before the day of graduation.
